

blaadjes

aan de boom hangen
...

blaffen

de grote hond kan hard ...

haan

de ... kraait.

the 1990s, the number of people in the UK who are employed in the public sector has increased from 10.5 million to 12.5 million (12.5% of the population).

There are a number of reasons for this increase. One of the main reasons is that the public sector has become a major employer of young people. In 1990, only 1.5 million young people were employed in the public sector, but by 2000, this number had risen to 3.5 million (30% of all young people in the UK).

Another reason for the increase is that the public sector has become a major employer of women. In 1990, only 4.5 million women were employed in the public sector, but by 2000, this number had risen to 7.5 million (75% of all women in the UK).

There are a number of reasons for this increase. One of the main reasons is that the public sector has become a major employer of women in the 1990s. In 1990, only 4.5 million women were employed in the public sector, but by 2000, this number had risen to 7.5 million (75% of all women in the UK).

Another reason for the increase is that the public sector has become a major employer of women in the 1990s. In 1990, only 4.5 million women were employed in the public sector, but by 2000, this number had risen to 7.5 million (75% of all women in the UK).

There are a number of reasons for this increase. One of the main reasons is that the public sector has become a major employer of women in the 1990s. In 1990, only 4.5 million women were employed in the public sector, but by 2000, this number had risen to 7.5 million (75% of all women in the UK).

Another reason for the increase is that the public sector has become a major employer of women in the 1990s. In 1990, only 4.5 million women were employed in the public sector, but by 2000, this number had risen to 7.5 million (75% of all women in the UK).

There are a number of reasons for this increase. One of the main reasons is that the public sector has become a major employer of women in the 1990s. In 1990, only 4.5 million women were employed in the public sector, but by 2000, this number had risen to 7.5 million (75% of all women in the UK).

Another reason for the increase is that the public sector has become a major employer of women in the 1990s. In 1990, only 4.5 million women were employed in the public sector, but by 2000, this number had risen to 7.5 million (75% of all women in the UK).

There are a number of reasons for this increase. One of the main reasons is that the public sector has become a major employer of women in the 1990s. In 1990, only 4.5 million women were employed in the public sector, but by 2000, this number had risen to 7.5 million (75% of all women in the UK).

Another reason for the increase is that the public sector has become a major employer of women in the 1990s. In 1990, only 4.5 million women were employed in the public sector, but by 2000, this number had risen to 7.5 million (75% of all women in the UK).

There are a number of reasons for this increase. One of the main reasons is that the public sector has become a major employer of women in the 1990s. In 1990, only 4.5 million women were employed in the public sector, but by 2000, this number had risen to 7.5 million (75% of all women in the UK).

Another reason for the increase is that the public sector has become a major employer of women in the 1990s. In 1990, only 4.5 million women were employed in the public sector, but by 2000, this number had risen to 7.5 million (75% of all women in the UK).

de .... legt eitjes.

kip

koe

de ... geeft melk.

lucht

de kraai vliegt hoog
in de ...

the 1990s, the number of people with a mental health problem has increased in the UK (Mental Health Act 1983, 1990, 1994).

There is a growing awareness of the need to improve the lives of people with mental health problems. The Department of Health (1999) has set out a vision of a new mental health system, which will be based on the following principles:

- (i) people with mental health problems should be treated as individuals, with their own needs and wishes;
- (ii) people with mental health problems should be given the opportunity to participate in decisions about their care and treatment;
- (iii) people with mental health problems should be given the opportunity to live in their own homes and communities.

There is a growing awareness of the need to improve the lives of people with mental health problems. The Department of Health (1999) has set out a vision of a new mental health system, which will be based on the following principles:

- (i) people with mental health problems should be treated as individuals, with their own needs and wishes;
- (ii) people with mental health problems should be given the opportunity to participate in decisions about their care and treatment;
- (iii) people with mental health problems should be given the opportunity to live in their own homes and communities.

There is a growing awareness of the need to improve the lives of people with mental health problems. The Department of Health (1999) has set out a vision of a new mental health system, which will be based on the following principles:

- (i) people with mental health problems should be treated as individuals, with their own needs and wishes;
- (ii) people with mental health problems should be given the opportunity to participate in decisions about their care and treatment;
- (iii) people with mental health problems should be given the opportunity to live in their own homes and communities.

There is a growing awareness of the need to improve the lives of people with mental health problems. The Department of Health (1999) has set out a vision of a new mental health system, which will be based on the following principles:

- (i) people with mental health problems should be treated as individuals, with their own needs and wishes;
- (ii) people with mental health problems should be given the opportunity to participate in decisions about their care and treatment;
- (iii) people with mental health problems should be given the opportunity to live in their own homes and communities.

There is a growing awareness of the need to improve the lives of people with mental health problems. The Department of Health (1999) has set out a vision of a new mental health system, which will be based on the following principles:

- (i) people with mental health problems should be treated as individuals, with their own needs and wishes;
- (ii) people with mental health problems should be given the opportunity to participate in decisions about their care and treatment;
- (iii) people with mental health problems should be given the opportunity to live in their own homes and communities.

There is a growing awareness of the need to improve the lives of people with mental health problems. The Department of Health (1999) has set out a vision of a new mental health system, which will be based on the following principles:

- (i) people with mental health problems should be treated as individuals, with their own needs and wishes;
- (ii) people with mental health problems should be given the opportunity to participate in decisions about their care and treatment;
- (iii) people with mental health problems should be given the opportunity to live in their own homes and communities.

sneeuwpop

de ... heeft een wortel als neus.

stuitert

de bal ... op en neer
op de grond.

the 1990s, the number of people with a mental health problem has increased in the UK (Mental Health Act 1983, 1990).

There is a growing awareness of the need to improve the lives of people with mental health problems. The Department of Health (1999) has set out a vision of a new mental health system, which will be based on the following principles:

- (i) People with mental health problems should be treated as individuals, with their own needs and wishes.
- (ii) People with mental health problems should be given the opportunity to participate in decisions about their care and treatment.
- (iii) People with mental health problems should be given the opportunity to live in their own homes and communities.

There is a growing awareness of the need to improve the lives of people with mental health problems.

The Department of Health (1999) has set out a vision of a new mental health system, which will be based on the following principles:

- (iv) People with mental health problems should be given the opportunity to live in their own homes and communities.
- (v) People with mental health problems should be given the opportunity to participate in decisions about their care and treatment.
- (vi) People with mental health problems should be treated as individuals, with their own needs and wishes.

There is a growing awareness of the need to improve the lives of people with mental health problems.

The Department of Health (1999) has set out a vision of a new mental health system, which will be based on the following principles:

- (vii) People with mental health problems should be given the opportunity to live in their own homes and communities.
- (viii) People with mental health problems should be given the opportunity to participate in decisions about their care and treatment.
- (ix) People with mental health problems should be treated as individuals, with their own needs and wishes.

There is a growing awareness of the need to improve the lives of people with mental health problems.

The Department of Health (1999) has set out a vision of a new mental health system, which will be based on the following principles:

- (x) People with mental health problems should be given the opportunity to live in their own homes and communities.
- (xi) People with mental health problems should be given the opportunity to participate in decisions about their care and treatment.
- (xii) People with mental health problems should be treated as individuals, with their own needs and wishes.

tanden

de haai heeft scherpe
...

wei

het paard loopt in de ...

